Local club learns what 2,635 pounds of turkey looks like

Extended Hands Food Bank found out just before Thanksgiving what 2,635 pounds of turkeys looks like.

Four Peaks Rotary Club donated two large pallets of frozen birds to the food bank. They arrived just in time for the holidays, along with canned cranberry sauce and stuffing mix for Extended Hands to distribute for Thanksgiving and Christmas meals.

These traditional holiday foods, as well as other staples including rice, beans and oatmeal, were purchased by Four Peaks Rotary from the Shamrock Food Service Warehouse. Each year, the Four Peaks Rotary Club's Foundation writes for and receives a $2,000 grant from the local Rotary District that matches the Foundation's contribution.

Four Peaks Foundation President Bill Beamish explained, "The grant allows Four Peaks Rotary to double our club's donation to the Fountain Hills community's food bank."

This year the grant's buying capability was enhanced thanks to Steve Chucri, Maricopa County Supervisor, who spoke at a Four Peaks Rotary meeting. During the meeting, member Sue Hendershott appealed for a connection to the wholesale food industry to which Supervisor Chucri responded with a contact at Shamrock Food Service who provided discounted prices, allowing Four Peaks Rotary to buy more food goods than in previous years.
