Fallbrook Village Rotary donates masks to local businesses

Paul Mungo of Manor Cleaners works with Fallbrook Village Rotary's George Archibald to make masks for the community.

FALLBROOK – Fallbrook Village Rotary continues to meet regularly on Zoom and works to serve the community during the COVID-19 pandemic.

John Alarcon, store manager of Major Market, receives masks from George Archibald of Fallbrook Village Rotary.

Rotarians contracted with Fallbrook's Manor Cleaners to sew masks. Paul Mungo, owner of Manor Cleaners, also donated 20 additional masks to the project.

Masks deliveries were made last week. Rotarian George Archibald provided masks to both John Alarcon, store manager of Major Market, who regularly supplies food for Rotary fundraisers.

Faro Trupiano also received masks from Rotarian Archibald. Trupiano's 127 West is the Rotary's meeting location when they aren't meeting online.

The additional donated masks were given to the Regency, for assisted-living personnel.

The Fallbrook Village Rotary Foundation and a San Diego and Imperial County Rotary COVID-19 grant funded this project. For more Fallbrook Village Rotary information, visit <https://fallbrookvillagerotary.com>.
