The Problem

Due to the extensive invasion of Ukraine and the use of various weapons by the Russian Federation, large portions of Ukrainian territories are now contaminated with explosives, posing a critical and immediate challenge.

Preliminary estimates indicate that around 300,000 square kilometers, nearly half of Ukraine's total area, require urgent action for identifying and clearing explosive remnants.

This situation ranks among the most severe since World War II, with no comparable scale of mine and ammunition pollution seen in any country affected by wars or armed conflicts.
